Understanding your child's use of technology such as Facebook, Youtube, Twitter, and Sextexting.

An Internet Safety Seminar
By Andrew Phillips

Children and teens are using technology in many ways without thinking about the repercussions that posting certain types of information could have. Andrew Phillips has worked with teenagers for over 17 years and also owns a small technology company. This combination of knowledge allows him special insight into how to help parents understand what their children are doing online as well as arm them with tools to talk with their children about wise internet use. Some of the topics to be explored this evening include social networking sites, like Facebook and Myspace, What exactly is Twitter?, the visual world of youtube, and "sextexting" We look forward to seeing you there.
